- It is reported that approximately 70 doctors have been recently transferred from Belgrade to various spots in the interior of Yugoslavia. The doctors, the majority of whom are young men capable of enduring strenuous physical hardships, were obliged to leave Belgrade on very short notice. The order relating to this transfer is alleged to be part of general measures under-taken for the reorganization of the sanitation or medical services. Jugoslav authorities are striving to establish as many medical centers as possible in the central regions of the country, which would be of great value in the event of a war.
